About Kylie Washington

Kylie Washington is an Australian contemporary artist working from her studio in Pearl Beach on the NSW Central Coast. Working across painting and ceramics, she creates bold, expressive works exploring the relationship between people, place, resilience and regeneration.

Central to Kylie's practice is the Australian landscape and, in particular, the banksia. Growing abundantly around her Pearl Beach studio, banksias have become a recurring motif in her work: sculptural, unruly and uniquely Australian, but also powerful symbols of survival and renewal. Many species regenerate after fire, an idea Kylie uses to explore the ways people, landscapes and communities recover, adapt and emerge changed.

Her paintings combine strong colour, gestural mark-making and contrasting textures, moving between abstraction and recognisable botanical forms. While grounded in the natural world, the work is also interested in human experience. Themes of ambition, identity, optimism, vulnerability and resilience sit beneath the surface, often accompanied by titles that bring humour, personality and another layer of meaning to the work.

Kylie has maintained a creative practice alongside a long career in television and storytelling, an experience that continues to influence the way she thinks about narrative, character and emotional connection. In recent years, her visual art practice has expanded through exhibitions, painting and ceramics, with an increasing focus on developing a distinctive contemporary Australian visual language.

Today, Kylie works between Sydney and Pearl Beach, creating original paintings, limited-edition fine art prints and ceramic works for private collectors and contemporary interiors. Her work has been exhibited in Sydney and is held in private collections.

At the heart of Kylie's practice is an interest in what it means to flourish rather than simply endure: finding beauty in imperfection, strength in adaptation and moments of unexpected radiance in the Australian landscape and in ourselves.

Original artworks and handmade ceramic pieces are individually created. Variations, irregularities, surface texture and evidence of the artist's hand are inherent characteristics of handmade work and are not necessarily faults.

Where dimensions are provided, they are approximate unless expressly stated otherwise.

We make every reasonable effort to display photographs, colours, textures and details of our products accurately. However, colours and appearance may vary depending on lighting, photography, screens and device settings.

3. ORIGINAL ARTWORKS

Unless expressly stated otherwise, original artworks are sold as unique works.

Once an original artwork has been sold, we will make reasonable efforts to remove or mark it as sold on the website as soon as practicable.

In the unlikely event that an artwork is purchased simultaneously by more than one customer, or is otherwise unavailable after an order has been placed, we reserve the right to cancel the affected order and provide a full refund.

Prints may be produced to order. Production and dispatch times displayed on the website are estimates and may vary.

5. CERAMICS AND HANDMADE OBJECTS

Ceramic works are handmade and may display variations in colour, glaze, form, dimensions and surface finish.

These characteristics are part of the individual nature of the work and should not automatically be regarded as defects.

Where specific care instructions apply, these will be provided with the product or included in its description.

All prices are displayed in Australian dollars unless otherwise stated.

Prices may be changed at any time without notice. A price change will not affect an order that has already been accepted and paid for.
